SCOTTDALE, Feb. 18.—On Saturday evening while the clerks to Miller's shoe store
were busy engaged in waiting on trade, a rear window
was opened and a hand came in the window. A box that con-

through the window. The end was out of the box and as the box was pulled through the shoes dropped out and the thief
got away with only the empty box.

PRESIDENT'S DEMAND FOR END OF STRIKE IS BACKED BY FEDERATION

In Its Statement of Labor's War Aims; Prussianism Must Be Defeated and Victory Won By Labor.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The action of President Wilson in issuing a sharp rebuke to the striking shipyard workers, as contained in a telegram to the general president of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, which concluded with the challenge, "Will you cooperate or will you obstruct?" was very opportunely backed up by a declaration of the war aims of American trades unionism in a statement issued yesterday by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor.
The outstanding features of this declaration were as follows:

"A gigantic struggle lies ahead, and now is a time when all workers must soberly face the grave importance of their daily work.

"We are face to face with a world crisis. We are in a world struggle which will determine for the immediate future whether principles of democratic freedom or principles of force shall dominate. The decision will determine not only the destiny of nations, but of every community and of every individual. No life will be untouched.

"The hope of labor lies in opportunity for freedom. The workers of America will not permit themselves to be deceived or deceived themselves into thinking the fate of the world will not vital change our own lives.

"The worker that fastens the rivets in building the ship is performing just as necessary war service to our republic as the sailor who takes the ship
across or the gunner in the trenches.

"This is a time when all workers must soberly face the grave importance of their daily work and decide industrial matters with a conscience mindful of the world relation of each act.

"This matter of world democracy is of vital interest to labor. Labor is not at rest or a party. It represents the inevitable desire for greater opportunity of the masses of all nations.

"The problem of production indispensable to preventing unnecessary
slaughter of fellow-men is squarely up to all workers—aye, to employees and employers and production depends upon materials.

"This is labor's war. It must be won by labor and every stage in the fighting and the final victory must be to count for humanity. That result only can justify the awful sacrifice."

SHIPYARD STRIKE IS CALLED OFF

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Workmen
in the shipyards at New York, Baltimore and elsewhere, which had been affected by the strike of carpenters and other workmen because of inequalities in the wage scales went to work this morning in response to an order of brotherhood officials calling the strike off.

McCAIRNS TRANSFERRED

Local Boy Will Go to France in War
Risk Insurance Department.

Mrs. Frank McCairns, of Scottsdale, formerly Miss Blanche Hamilton, a daughter of Rev. William Hamilton, has received a letter from husband,
a member of Company D, 130th Regiment, Camp Hancock, saying he has been transferred to the war risk insurance company as a clerk and stenographer. McCairns expects to leave soon for France.

McCairns is a Connellsville man, living on the West Side. He was married only a few days before Company

HUNTING ALIEN PROPERTY.

Nation-Wide Roundup of Those Who Have Failed to Make Report.

Under orders of A. Mitchell Palmer, Alien Property Custodian, federal agents have begun a search of the country from coast to coast to get in-alien property still outstanding. Holders who have failed to report may be fined $10,000 or imprisoned for 10 years, or both.

The law will be impartially enforced against all individuals or corporations who fail to report.

25 CASES AGAINST UNIONTOWN BANK
ON MARCH LIST

Foreign Depositors in First National Bank Claim Total of $75,000.

FAILED TO GET DIVIDENDS

Suits Over Street Paring in Connellville Also to Be Heard at the March Term, Along With Others From This City and Nearby Places.

Twenty-five cases, aggregating claims of about $75,000, against the First National Bank of Uniontown are scheduled for trial during the March term of common pleas court which will open Monday, March 4. The defendants for the most part are foreigners whom their attorneys claim were defrauded of large sums by bank
officials when their money was taken on promissory notes in such a manner as the ignorant alien was left entirely in the dark and now has failed to share in the bank dividends.

According to the attorneys for the plaintiffs the foreigners placed their money in the First National Bank with the firm belief that it was to go on interest. When they failed to receive dividends with other depositors, they consulted attorneys who found that instead of having money on deposit,
all they had to show for their money
was a promissory note to their bank book.

In preparing the cases against the First National Bank, the plaintiffs' attorneys contend that the bank is held responsible for fraud perpetrated by any of its officers and thus an effort is being made to recover.

Attorneys John Duggan, Jr., and H.
S. Dumbauld each have eight cases,
while several other prominent members of the bar have prepared equally strong cases for the presentation to the court. It is estimated that regardless of how the cases are decided the decision will finally rest with the Supreme court.

In all cases the law firm of Sterling, Higbee & Matthews is counsel for the defendant bank, represented by Receiver John H. Strawn.

Four cases against the City of Connellsville, two each brought by Washington, Pa. and by the West in an appeal from viewers are on the list
for Thursday, April 4.

On Monday, April 8, will be heard the trespass action of Harold H. Hall and others against the Western Maryland railroad company while on the following day one of the most interesting hearings will perhaps be the assault case in which Catherine Ann Butternore is the plaintiff and Fred Miller the defendant.

The case of the Connellsville Iron Works against the Elma Connellsville
Coke company and the Indian Creek
Coal and Coke company against W. R.
McCarney will be aired.

William H. Showman's appeal from the award of the viewers in the case against the school district of Connellville will be heard Monday, April 15.
The last case of the March session is that of the Warwick Coal company against the Indian Creek Valley railroad company, scheduled for Thursday, April 25.

OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

Braddock, and the only great grandchild of Mr. Means, and his only sister, Mrs. Henrietta Richter of Uniontown.

STRUCK BY CAR.

Continental Man at Hospital as Result of Mishap.

John Karmarzewski, of Continental
No. 3, was struck by an automobile
yesterday afternoon on the Trotter road, suffering fractured ribs and a bad laceration of the face. The car was driven by a man named McLaughlin.

The injured man was removed to the Cottage State hospital, where it was stated today at noon that his condition was not serious.

WHERE AMERICAN SOLDIERS ARE FIGHTING AND LEARNING ARTILLERY WORK IN FRANCE

According to the reports from General Pershing's headquarters in France our troops are facing the Hun at the picturesque spot in France shown in the upper photograph. The dispatches say that they are holding the part of the front to the northwest of Toul. This would indicate that they are probably on a sector of the famous St. Mihiel salient. The magnificent chateau of the eleventh century at Fontainebleau shown below is where the Americans are training under French instructors for commission in the artillery.

NEARLY ALL THE WOMEN
"OVER HERE" WEAR BLACK,
CHARLES M'KEVITT WRITES

People at home are no more favored in the matter of regular mail service
from abroad than are their friends on the other side with their mail from home. If the writers have formed the habit of writing at regular intervals,
their letters accumulate before a mail steamer sails and they arrive here in bundles. This was illustrated a few days ago when the home folks of Sergeant Charles A. McKevitt, Quartermaster, United States National Army, American Expeditionary Forces, received four letters beginning one dated January 19.

Sergeant McKevitt is stationed at
"Post Office 718," which is in a town in France, the name and location of which are not revealed. He gives some side lights on the town in his letter of January 19.

"Several of the stores," he says,
"have clerks who can speak English fluently and we often encounter advices who can converse with us. The streets in the town are very narrow,
so narrow that they use horses in single file in hauling carts, which are chiefly used.

"The lower class, and some of the middle class, I presume they are, wear woolen shoes. They make a terrible racket on the side walks. Wine shops are as thick as honey bees and the bar tenders are all girls and women.
Everything seems to be done by the women, because the men are doing their share at the front. The Y. M.
C. A. has a building here and is doing a heap of good. We go there to get our money changed and to play billiards."

In a letter written a week later Sergeant McKevitt reports progress in learning to speak French, being able at that time to indulge in a limited conversation in that tongue.

Killing Is Outcome of Dispute at East Millsboro.

Disputed authority between two deputy sheriffs at East Millsboro Saturday evening is said to have been the direct cause of a shooting in which Louis Vecchio, aged 41, an Italian, was fatally wounded. Andrew Mulbridge, aged 40, an Austrian, was arrested later in the evening charged with the crime.

Vecchio died at the Uniontown hospital Saturday night after making a dying statement to County Detective John J. Smith. Both men were employed as special officers by the Bussard-Semans Coal & Coke company at East Millsboro.

George Skinner, principal of the Ohio State schools, reported to County Superintendent of Schools, John S. Carroll, that patrons' day on last Friday was a complete failure, this being due, he claims, to the Western Maryland wreck, which occurred
that morning at Ohio State.
The patrons became so interested in the wreck that they forgot to visit the schools.

CONDITIONS IN LOWER TYRONE SCHOOL SCORED

Roof is Leaky, Heaters in Poor Condition, Urinating Fountain Frozen, Inspector Darr Finds.

The Haultown school building in Lower Tyrone township is unfit, in its present condition, for school purposes,
according to a report by Inspector James S. Darr who last week inspected it. A summary of defects follows:

All windows have wire screens, nailed fast. Part of the windows cannot be adjusted because weights and cords are out of order. The roof is leaky.
The heater on the second floor is in bad condition. The sanitary drinking fountain in each room was frozen, and the children were without water. A storage room is under the stairway leading to the second floor and if paper
there should catch fire escape of the children on the second floor would be cut off. Toilets are in unsanitary condition and there is no record of when they were cleaned.

According to information the inspector secured there has been lavity in fumigation after cases of measles, whooping cough and diphtheria.

Reports were received by the inspector that children fall down the steps because there is no hand rail.
None has been seriously injured, but it is claimed a serious accident may happen at any time.

There are 47 pupils on the first floor and 43 on the second. No fault is found with the teachers.

al Director Charles C. Mitchell to the home of a sister-in-law of the deceased, Mrs. L. M. Sanmyer in Murphy avenue, where private funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, with Rev. Wilbur Nelson, pastor of the First Baptist church of Connellsville, interment in Hill Grove cemetery.

That is Way Former Dickerson Run
Boy Deserves Condition.
J. C. McGill, correspondent for The Courier at Dawson, has received a letter from John Nicol, better known as "Admiral" to his friends and railroad
boys, who is with the United States Navy "over there."
Nicol was car dispatcher at the Pittsburg & Lake Erie yard offices at Dickerson Run prior to enlisting in the Navy. He writes that he is in the best of health and states that "when I say this I mean real good health."

WELLS-FARGO IS LOSER

Said Thousands of Dollars Worth of Goods Have Been Stolen During the Past Six Months; Several of the Defendants Are Now Out Under Bail.

Several prominent young men of the city are under bail on a charge of larceny from the Wells-Fargo Express company, and another, a negro, who is alleged to have been in league with them is still in jail. It is charged that party trying from the express company has been going on for six months
and finally culminated in the arrest of part of the young men Thursday.

Reports are that at least $2,000 worth of goods was stolen from the express company. Wearing apparel and eatables are said to have been taken.

The young men in the case are charged with larceny of different articles. Some are alleged to have stolen eggs which were sold to a restaurant man of the city. Others were arrested for taking sweaters and overcoats.

It is likely that a settlement will be made for the articles taken and that to obtain a release, at least two of the men arrested will have to enlist in the United States army. Three of the men arrested were given hearings last week and held for court but later they secured bail.

MINE EXAMINING BOARD OF FIFTH DISTRICT RENAMED

P. J. Walsh and His Assistants Will Be On Duty For Another Four Years; Other Boards.

Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen today appointed mine examining boards in the Fifth, Ninth and Twenty-third Districts of Pennsylvania
to examine applicants for certificates of qualification as mine foremen, assistant mine foremen and fire bosses.
The members will hold their offices
for a period of four years.

In the Ninth district, with headquarters in Connellsville, Mine Inspector P. J. Walsh of Connellsville; John W. Graves, superintendent for the American Mangum Manufacturing company at Dunbar, and James Conway of Dunbar township are reappointed. In the other districts the appointees are:

Fifth district—Richard Maize, mine inspector; Clarence Patterson, superintendent of the W. J. Rainey at Rever, and George Carr of Fairchance,
a miner.

Twenty-third district—Edward J.
Girod, mine inspector; Edward W.
Williamson, superintendent of the H.
C. Frick Coke company at Ronco, and Edward O'Brien of Masonston, a miner.

WASHINGTON MESSAGE CONFIRMS DEATH OF SCOTTDALE YOUTH

Thomas A. Llewellyn Was Aboard the Transport Tuscania and Is Buried in Scotland.

Official notice has been received by Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Llewellyn, Scottsdale, that their son, Thomas A. Llewellyn, was a victim of the German submarine which torpedoed the transport Tuscania, carrying American troops to France. A message from the adjutant general at Washington was received by the family last night.

According to Associated Press dispatches the body of Llewellyn was buried along with other Americans on the east coast of Scotland.

That he would never return to his native land was the firm conviction of Llewellyn when he bade goodbye to Connellsville friends. He had voiced a similar pronouncement to others at his home town.

The young man's cousin, Carl Llewellyn, a son of Mr. and Mrs. P. M.
Llewellyn of Scottsdale, has been called in the draft.

SOCIAL PERSONAL

The regular meeting of the Woman's Culture Club will be held Monday afternoon at the home of Dr. Katherine Wakenight in East Crawford avenue.

Members of the Paramount and Kintergarten bowling teams witnessed Norma Talmadge in "The Moth" last night at the Paramount as the guests of Manager C. A. Wagner. The bowlers, 24 in number, occupied boxes.

Mrs. Mary McCutcheon gave a party at her home at 5 o'clock dinner at her home at Dawson in honor of the 77th birthday of her father, Lindley Newcomer, a veteran of the Civil War and widely and favorably known in Connellsville and vicinity. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Martin King, Mr. and Mrs. George Swallow, Mrs. H. E. Penn, Mrs. C. P. Frederick, Mrs. Cyrus Stouffer and Mrs. Charles Zimmerman, all of Connellsville.

The Basy Twelve club was pleasantly entertained last evening by Mrs. B. A. Wagman at her home in Ninth street, Greenwood. Knitting and crocheting were the amusements of the evening. Luncheon was served. Mrs. C. C. Bittner will entertain the club Friday evening March 1, at her home in Ninth street, Greenwood. In addition to members two guests were present.

William Sickles entertained the F. O. M. class of the Methodist Protestant church at its regular monthly business and social meeting last evening at his home in Morrell avenue, Greenwood. Plans for the annual musicale to be held Friday evening, March 1, in the church, for the benefit of the building fund, were discussed.

The monthly business and social meeting of the Ontario class of the Methodist Protestant church was held last evening in the church. The committee in charge was composed of Mrs. Guy Shaw, Mrs. Herbert Pratt and Miss Means. Business of a routine nature was transacted.

Miss Pearl Thom, who hosts at a delightful meeting of the Corticelli Fancywork club last evening at her home in Eighth street, Greenwood. Ten members were present and spent the evening at fancywork and knitting. Dainty refreshments were served.

Miss Mary Slinger, who resigned as stenographer in the division accountant's office of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad to accept a government position in Washington, D. C., was presented by the employees of the office with a handsome purse.

At a recent meeting of the board of trustees of the First Baptist church an organization was effected by electing the following officers: President, J. C. Munson; secretary, E. B. Martin; house committee, S. B. Dull; personal committee, E. B. Martin; finance committee, A. C. Stickle; repairs committee, J. F. Metzger.

Children and grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Brown assembled at their home in Brown township, near Smithfield, yesterday to assist in celebrating the golden wedding anniversary of the aged couple. Mr. Brown is 74 years old and his wife is two years his senior. Both enjoy excellent health. The children present at the anniversary were Mrs. G. E. Morton, Mrs. J. E. Hanley, Attorney E. D. Brown, Jr., Mrs. J. Brown, all of Uniontown; Mrs. A. F. Conn of Springhill township; and O. S. Brown of Smithfield.

WAR VETERANS MAKE MERRY AT HOME OF COL. JIM BARNHART

Occasion is to Celebrate the 76th Anniversary of the Royal Young Fellow.

Sixteen comrades of William F. Kurtz Post, No. 104, of the Grand Army of the Republic, were present for the dinner and exercises at Sunday, Dunbar township, yesterday attending the observance of the 76th birthday anniversary of Colonel James J. Barnhart.

The celebration was opened with singing and prayer by Rev. J. H. Lamberton of the Methodist Protestant church of this city. All the comrades then marched around and congratulated Mr. Barnhart after which he made a five minute speech of welcome.

The daughter of the Post, Miss Mercedes Gladden, and Miss Josephine Rhinehart played a duet. J. G. Hicks sang a solo accompanied by Miss Gladden at the piano. Comrades John E. Jones and Clark Collins gave an interesting talk on many things that happened when they were soldiers together in the army.

Rev. Lamberton and W. H. Thomas made speeches and C. H. Whiteley read a selection to suit the occasion. After enjoying a very good time together a lunch was served by Mrs. Barnhart, Mrs. Bradman and Mrs. Welling. The comrades present were J. J. Barnhart, W. P. Clark, Henry Kurtz, John Robinson, W. A. Artis, A. S. Haddock, C. H. Whiteley, Clark Collins, John E. Jones, L. L. Collins, L. W. Wolfe, J. G. Hicks, W. H. Shaw, J. R. Dunham, A. Drebert, A. Welling.

FOOD CAMPAIGN

To Begin With Distribution of Food Pledges at Churches Tomorrow.

The food conservation campaign drive will be started tomorrow by the pastors of the churches making announcements concerning its objects and purposes and distributing food pledge cards among the members. These cards pledge the signers to economy in the use of flour, sugar and fats and observance of the regulations affecting the use of these foods. The cards will be brought to the churches for collection one week from tomorrow.

During the week the food campaign will be the subject of the talks to be given by the Four-Minute Men in the theatres and elsewhere. An effort is to be made to induce at least two of the ministers of the city to join the ranks of the Four-Minute Men, not only during the coming week, but to permanently become a part of this very useful agency for the enlightenment of the people on the issue of the war.

3,000 POUNDS OF FLOUR

Found Hoarded at Keister Works By County Food Administrator.

An investigation by County Food Controller at Keister coke works yesterday revealed 3,000 pounds of flour secreted in 12 houses at that place. Some of it was found in beds and under them and in one house the base board had been removed and sacks hidden in the space between the weatherboarding and the plastering. The results of this investigation, which is the first made in the county, will be reported to the legal department of the Food Administration.

RED CROSS SUPPLIES

Destroyed When Steamer Is Sunk in Atlantic Harbor.

An Atlantic Port, Feb. 16.—Fire in the hold of the Scandinavian-American steamship Minak here today made it necessary for firemen, after vain effort to extinguish the blaze, to open the ship to sink in the mud at the pier where she was moored. The loss, mostly from water, is estimated at about $600,000.

The ship's cargo consisted of a large amount of Red-Cross stores and cotton.

WOMEN TO REGISTER

ALL LOCAL COAL RATES APPROVED

National Administrator Upholds Price Adjustments Made by State and Local Administrators.

Fuel Administrator Garfield has issued a ruling formally adopting and approving all retail prices fixed by the local administrators throughout the country, the confirming order reading as follows:

"All retail prices and retail gross margins heretofore and hereafter designated by any state fuel administrator or by any local committee with the approval of the state fuel administrator, are hereby adopted and fixed by the United States Fuel Administration as the retail prices or retail gross margins for the sale of coal in the locality or by the dealers designated by such fuel administrator or local committee, subject, however, to modification either by the state fuel administrator making or approving the same or by the United States Fuel Administrator; and further subject to all orders, rules and regulations heretofore or hereafter issued or made by the President of the United States or the United States Fuel Administrator or by any state fuel administrator affecting the sale, shipment or distribution of coal."

"And it is hereby further ordered that any one or more persons who feel aggrieved by the prices heretofore or hereafter designated by any state fuel administrator or by any local committee may appeal to the United States Fuel Administrator to have such designation of prices or gross margins modified by forwarding to the legal department, United States Fuel Administration at Washington, a verified written petition setting forth in detail the facts relied upon by such petitioner and by forwarding a copy of such petition to the state fuel administrator who made or approved the designation of prices or gross margins which it is sought to have modified. Pending the determination of such appeal and until the decision of such appeal by the United States Fuel Administrator, such designated prices or gross margins shall remain in full force and effect unless otherwise ordered by the state or United States Fuel Administrator."

LESS ORE MAY COME DOWN

As Result of the Falling Off in Pig Iron Production; Supplies on Docks Constitute a Reserve.

Lake vesselmen see in the decreased pig iron production in January the possibility that the bulk freight fleet of Great Lakes may have to bring down somewhat less ore this season than expected says the Cleveland Daily Iron Trade. Pig iron production in January was down 489,297 tons which, according to the computation of 1.85 tons of iron ore to the ton of pig iron, means the country's consumption of ore in January fell off 895,300 tons.

Fully 750,000 tons of this ore is from Lake Superior mines. No matter how rapidly pig iron production picks up furnaces are ahead 750,000 tons of upper lake ore. Averaging ore cargoes last summer at slightly more than 8,000 tons each, the January statement cuts more than 90 average trips from the demand to be made this summer on the fleet.

In addition, dock piles at lower lake ports January 1, totaled 10,267,849 tons, an increase of 465,000 tons over January 1, 1917. Shipments from the docks in January, 1917, were 586,000 tons. On February 1 there were about 880,000 tons more on the docks than last February 1. And not until the docks are pretty well cleared can the fleet be given anything like the dispatch demand.

GET ACQUAINTED WITH BANKING.

Many People Are Now For the First Time Getting Acquainted With The Bank.

On account of the larger volume of money now in circulation, many people who have never had a bank account are now becoming bank depositors. This is a good indication. Money is not safe when it is kept at home or is carried on the person. The bank is organized and equipped for the safe-keeping of money. When your money comes in, deposit it with The Citizens National Bank, 138 North Pittsburg street, where it will be under United States Government protection. ### KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a yellow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for cod liver oil, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

RICE TO BE CHEAPER

Surplus to Be Placed on Market April 1, Hoover Says.

By Associated Press.
Washington, Feb. 16.—Reduction in the price of rice is in prospect for April 1, the food administration announced today. Distribution figures show that there is a surplus after deducting the million bags purchased for export to Europe.

The increase in the cost of rice during the last few months has been due to the fact that most rice mills were working to capacity in supplying the allies, thereby depleting the normal supply for home use.

CANNOT BUY BARLEY.

Until Regulations Governing Purchase Are Formulated.

The Food Administration has issued orders directing that maltsters cease all purchase of barley and other grains for malting until the rules governing such purchases are formulated.

It is estimated maltsters have a three to six months' supply of malting grains on hand.

GOD IS GUIDING THE WAR

Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen Tells Large Audience That the Allies, on the Side of Right, Are Sure to Triumph; Automobile Burns; Notes.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTSDALE, Feb. 18.—One of the most impressive and interesting services ever held here was the patriotic service held in the First Baptist church yesterday afternoon in connection with the dedication of a service flag. The address was given by Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen of Uniontown. He spoke on the war, saying that God holds the guiding hand in this war and that right is bound to win as it did in the Revolutionary and Civil Wars. He said that this country was the most righteous country on the globe and pointed out a number of reasons why it was; citing incident after incident in this terrible war that not a boy who had a star on that flag would be guilty of since he was God-fearing and had been raised to that. A number of the Italian boys have their names on the service flag and the Italian band played several good numbers.

On the service flag are the names of the following: Allen D. Green, Ralph Bixler, and Charles Edgar Kromer, United States Navy; George P. Reid and Edward Kelly, in France; Charles Titterton, James Clarkson, H. Martin Lee, Charles E. Murphy, Camp Hancock, Ga.; Dr. C. H. Poole, Dr. D. E. Griffith, Charles D. Miller and William J. Fetter, Medical Reserve corps; Edward W. Lowe, Field Hospital, San Antonio, Texas; Frank P. Miller, Replacement Engineers, Washington, D. C.; Russell Z. Elcher, Fort McPherson; Harry M. Reed, Fort Oglethorpe; William Percy, Ordnance Department; J. R. Stauffer and Harry Brooks, West Point, N. Y.; Ermegildo Belmonte, Camp Gordon; Antonio DeRosa, Columbus, Ohio; Albert Mincucci, Yuma, Arizona; Pietro Carral, William Rollinson, Camp Lee; Francesco and Gregorio Leonardo, Francesco Cappallanca, Gerardo Malpido, Onorio, Iozzo, Giuseppe Sibille, Massimo Mayer, Antonio Formanaro, War Zone, Italy. Automobile in Bureau.

Last evening an automobile belonging to the repairman of the Bell Telephone company stored at the Central Amc company garage, caught on fire and although chemicals were used the auto was entirely consumed before the flames could be extinguished. A lighted lantern was in the car and when the gas was turned on an explosion followed, setting fire to the machine.

THE PARAMOUNT

"THE AVENGING TRAIL"—Based on Henry Owen's novel of the North woods. Gaston Olat, with Marola Lockwood the prominent screen star in the leading role, is being presented today. A great many of the scenes were photographed with no little amount of difficulty. Those were the winter scenes which were made when the snow was falling with early winter heaviness. The setting of the story lends itself particularly well to pretty scenery. The action is laid in a Northern lumber locality during the winter and early spring, and, as is the case in that country snows cover the ground during the period. "The Avenging Trail," is a vigorous drama, the light scenes being another great feature. For the mob scenes the entire crew of lumberjacks from the camp in which Mr. Lockwood was working was requisitioned and their number was supplemented by scores of other lumberjacks working in nearby camps. Sally Crute and other screen stars of prominence are seen in the support of Mr. Lockwood. Tomorrow Mrs. Vernon Castle, supported by Elliot Dexter, will appear in "Stranded in Arcady." On Wednesday Dorothy Phillips will be featured in "Broadway Love and on Thursday "Gates of Gladness," featuring Madge Evans and a two reel comedy, with Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle in the leading role will be shown.

THE SOISSON

"MASTER AND MAN."—Owing to the failure of the Adams Express company to deliver the manuscript of Hall Caine's play, "The Christian," to the Manhattan Players, the Manhattan Players will offer an equally high-class success, "Master and Man," for the three days commencing with the matinee today. "Master and Man" is a powerful story dealing with the everlasting struggle between capital and labor. The whole idea is so original and interesting that playgoers will agree on this being one of the best plays ever presented by their favorite theatres. Following "Master and Man," the Manhattan Players will be seen in a sensational White Slave play, "Why Girls Go Wrong." It should be remembered that "The Christian" will positively be produced as soon as the manuscript is delivered at the Soisson. The theatre will no longer be dark on Tuesdays.

ORPHEUM THEATRE

"THE GHOST HOUSE."—A drunken bank robber in the garret, two frightened girls on the second floor, and a young man being initiated into a college fraternity on the first floor in a haunted house. This is the condition at the opening of the "Ghost House," a Paramount picture with Jack Pickford and Louise Huff in the stellar roles. "Damaged No Goods," an amusing William Fox comedy, will also be shown. Tomorrow Vivian Martin is featured in the Paramount picture, "The Trouble Buster." Wednesday Virginia Pearson stars in the William Fox drama, "The Stolen Honor."

THE ARCADE

"IN BON BON TOWN."—The Bon Bon Revue company, headed by Tech Murdock and Iris Kennedy, open a week's engagement at the Arcade this afternoon. The offering today and tomorrow will be the musical collection, "In Bon Bon Town," a college boy show with many unusual features. The company also includes the Murdock Brothers, eccentric dancers, the Ole Jazz Four, harmony singers, Eddie Harris and Rolly Lockhart. This company come from Washington where it has played to capacity houses all week. The chorus are some-steps and the song numbers are new.

480 SHIPS

Were Sent Across With Tons of Supplies as Result of Heatless Mondays.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—In an address delivered here Saturday night Fuel Administrator Garfield stated that as a result of the closing order 480 ships, carrying more than 2,000,000 tons of food, fuel and munitions and other war supplies, which had been tied up in Atlantic ports, were bunkered and sent to sea from January 17, the day the order became effective, to January 23. The flow of supplies necessary to the American expeditionary forces and the Allies had been re-established.

In addition, the railroads were cleared for important shipments of steel and other commodities to factories, without which the most essential war industries would have been closed.

MUST DIVIDE

Hoarded Flour With Those Who Are Without a Supply.

The Food Administrator has issued orders to the county administrators to redistribute hoarded flour, discovered in communities where temporary scarcity of substitute cereals has interfered with the sale of wheat flour according to the 50-50 rule, to persons who have no flour.
It is stated that the non-arrival of wheat substitutes, because of railway congestion, will be cleared up in a week or two.

Rev. Huffer came to Perryopolis three and a half years ago. During that time the church was enlarged and a modern parsonage was erected.

BUILDERS TO USE TREENAILS

How Framework of Ships Under Construction for Uncle Sam Will Be Held Together.

The framework of the wooden ships which are now being built for the United States Emergency corporation will not be held by even a single metal nail. They will be pinned together with treenails cut from the trunks of live oak or yellow locust trees.

There are two or three causes for the use of wooden nails. One is the great need of iron and steel in other lines of war activity where wood could not be used, and another is that the wooden pin is lighter than a metal one and less expensive.

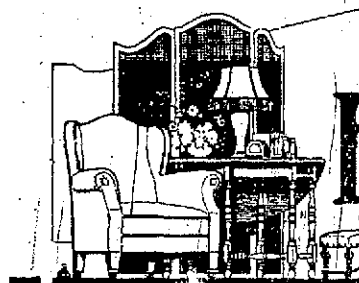

Each ship's hull will require 300,000 of the treenails, and they will be fastened in place by splitting each end and driving in a white oak wedge. Each ship will require 600,000 wedges. It is said that the wooden pins are more quickly put in place than are metal ones.

Treenails are 24 inches long, an inch and a quarter in diameter and perfectly round. They are used to fasten the planks to the boat frames. Soon after a vessel is launched the pins swell to a snug fit in the framework.

Timber for the ships comes from the sawmills in 60-foot slabs 14 inches through, and is then worked into the different sizes for the framework and siding.

Service Aprons Come Into Their Own

As a badge of service, in these times when only service of some kind counts, the apron has come into its own. All women do the aprons that signify real work is to be done by their wearers, with a degree of satisfaction and pride which the handsomest evening gown cannot hope to rival. Aprons are classified by the materials used in them and by design and color into the various sorts of service aprons besides those that are made for wear at home in the occupations that demand service there.

Chambray, gingham and percale furnish the goods for service aprons with other durable weaves in the list of available. Pique, cretonne and printed cottons lend their touches of white or bright colors in collars, cuffs and pockets and wide, old-fashioned check braid, has been resurrected to take the place of honor as a finish on aprons for wear at home.
Starting out with these, there are "bungalow" aprons, so cheery looking that one is tempted to acquire one and buy a bungalow to match it. One of these is shown in the picture. It is of striped percale with deep cuffs and collar of white pique. It does not open straight down the front but folds over from right to left, with the right side trimmed into a point. It fastens with a button at the left side, is provided with a capacious pocket and held in place by a flat belt of the percale, which fastens in front with buttons and buttonholes. The belt slips through slashes in the apron and modestly hides its good work in supporting the garment. This trick of the belts is featured in other styles. The prettiest of bungalow aprons is of blue chambray with collar and cuffs of gay cretonne edged with white rick-rack braid. Across the front a big pocket of cretonne looks like a knitting bag attached to the apron. It suggests that the wearer will always have her knitting or her sewing at hand.

Aprons for "clerical service" in war work are made of dark gray chambray and are really plain one-piece dresses, that fasten with small pearl or bone buttons. Their sleeves are finished with a band at the wrist.
For "conservation service," that is for one's own household, aprons of blue chambray are shown with large chambray pockets and deep cuffs and collar of white pique. The apron is cut straight at the front and buttons over from right to left. The belt slips through slashes as in the apron illustrated.

There is a "refreshment service" dress of blue and white striped chambray with white collars and cuffs. It is worn with a white serving apron wherever its owner is called upon to serve food to soldiers or in the interest of war work.

WHAT IS EXPECTED OF LABOR.

In the work of war preparation the biggest single problem at this time, the problem most urgently in need of a speedy solution, is that of increasing the number of merchant ships. It also appears to be the problem which has been set about by the most difficulties and delays in its early solution. It is a task of great magnitude and one which requires the cooperation of all the shipping interests and the government.

Due largely to the fact that the industry of shipbuilding is local in certain sections of the country interest in it has never been widespread or general. Few people have realized the important part shipping bears to our success in the war and they have been indifferent to the appeals that have been made to speed up the work. They have consorted themselves with the delusion that the German U-boat has proven a failure as a means of destroying the world's commerce, even after being rudely awakened anew to this danger by the sinking of the troop ship Tuscania.

That we have made no more rapid progress in the construction of ships has been little short of lamentable. All the more lamentable when it is remembered that until we have a fleet large enough to transport all our soldiers and their needed supplies to France, in spite of all the submarines that do prey, we can have no assurance that our efforts to help win the war will avail anything. We have all the means at hand; the best organizing and executive ability and skill; the needed materials and the shipyards, but as a member of the Shipping Board has observed, "The work languishes. It is not proceeding at top-notch as it should. The great limiting factor is the lack of labor."

The call for mechanics to enlist in the Shipbuilding Reserve is being eagerly answered and a great force is certain to be recruited. While this has been in progress men employed in the various shipyards have hampered the progress of the work through strikes. It is the conviction of many persons that these have frequently been instigated by agents of Germany, that country being fully aware of the military advantage to be gained by any interference with the plans to provide ocean carriers for our army and its supplies. In other instances there have been contentions over wage scales.

Whatever may have been the causes the country at large looks to the labor leaders and organizations, proofs of whose loyalty have not been lacking, to make an end of these interruptions to the prosecution of the most important activity connected with our war preparations. Labor can perform no more signal service than to hold its ranks firmly in line on its part of the "front" where the assaults of Prussianism must be stayed, otherwise we will lose the struggle for national liberty and existence.

The backing up by the American Federation of Labor of the President's demand for an ending of the last strike of shipbuilders shows that loyal labor realizes its obligations. But it also has the duty of bringing the disloyal elements into line or banishing them from its ranks.

Why not the firing squad? The public has never been taken into the confidence of the Washington authorities to the extent of having been told why more "strategic" measures have not been taken in dealing with spies and traitors who have been apprehended in this country since we became involved in war with Germany. Offenses of such character have been committed that under the rules of war, should have subjected the offenders to the extreme penalty. This, so far as known, has never been indicated in the most flagrant cases. In Europe they do these things differently. Spies are made to suffer the death penalty and everything possible is done to neutralize the effects of their nefarious plots. In this country we seem to have been content with inflicting this class of dangerous enemies in camps and other places where they are permitted to revel in a sort of luxury.

The recent conviction of Bolo Pasha, the French traitor, is an instance of the stern methods of our Allies in dealing with these offenders. He has been condemned to death, the sentence having been stayed on an appeal which has not yet been decided. This accomplished villain, who consorted with some prominent citizens of this country, was the trusted agent of Bernstorff while the latter was inaugurating his diabolical plots in this country. He went to France where he was made the disarming agent of the German government in an insidious attempt to weaken the morale of the French nation.

"His dealings with newspapers and with public men," says the Philadelphia Ledger, "were notoriously corrupt. For a long time he succeeded in covering up his tracks. Perhaps detection might have been postponed much longer but for the evidence secured and sent to the French Government by the State Department at Washington. He had influential friends—some of them were fellow conspirators—and these are seriously involved in the revelations concerning them. Even a former Premier, Calvaux, is under a heavy cloud of suspicion.

"The penalty of death inflicted upon Bolo is richly deserved. His crime was too grievous for mercy. There is a lesson for us in the way France has treated him. We have our own traitors, though we hesitate to punish them. By one technically or another they are permitted to escape. Is there not work in this country for a firing squad to do?"

A TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM.

There is no longer a division of opinion among those in close touch with the transportation situation as to what is needed to facilitate the permanent clearing up of the congestions which have so long existed at all traffic centers.

That a coal shortage has prevailed for months is now generally conceded to have been a question of transportation. There is no lack of mine capacity to produce all the coal needed, but there is a decided lack of motive power and cars, to move it, and perhaps less of the latter than the former. The shortage in motive power, including also the shortage in men to handle trains, has prevented the prompt movement of cars to destinations and back again to loading points, the effect of which has been the same as an actual insufficiency in the number of cars.

From this view of the situation the consensus of opinion among those who have given it close study is that the solution of the problem of fuel supply as well as also of the problem of moving other essential freight, is dependent upon a solution of the transportation problem. There are differences of opinion as to how this may best be done. Of the many suggestions along this line one by the Coal Mining Review has considerable merit.

"It would seem," says this publication, "that a practical plan of solving the congested railroad traffic would be to call into a conference all railroad presidents. Frankly ask the railroad executives what is required in the way of locomotives, railroad cars and other equipment to handle the traffic offered the railroads for transportation. Then let Congress pledge the credit necessary for the railroads to purchase locomotives, cars and equipment, and if locomotive works and car shops are not available, let the Government temporarily commandeer these plants to furnish the railroads the necessary locomotives and railroad cars to move freight. When this is done there will be no coal shortage."

With the murder of habes being resumed Germany will naturally feel the cause of Prussianism is moving forward toward its ultimate goal.

The advance in price of this vein coal may prove the thin end of the wedge to a general increase.

With Sligo on double turn and the electric steel mill starting on a nine months' run, and the Monday closing order revoked, "worstcase" days should be a rarity in Conneltsville and vicinity now.

The maple sugar makers of Indian Creek valley and Somerset county, with proper encouragement from the weather man, may be depended upon to do their part in helping to relieve the sugar shortage.

Western Pennsylvania boys range high in everything at Camp Lee, even in the identification numbers.

THE LITTLE OLD MAN.

The little old man with the curve in his back
And the eyes that are dim and the skin
So black that it wrinkles and rolls on his cheeks
With a thin, little voice that goes Never again to the store but that right at his feet
Are all of the youngsters who live on the street.

And the little old man in the suit that was black
And once might have perfectly fitted
Has a boy's chubby first in his own wrinkled hand.
And together they trudge off to Light-
Henry Land,
Where splendid excursions he gives every day.

To the boys and the girls in his funny way.
The little old man is as queer as can be—
He'd spend all his time with a child on his knee.
And the stories he tells I could never repeat.
But they're always of good boys and little girls sweet.
And the children come home at the end of the day
To tell what the little old man had to say.

Once the little old man didn't trudge to the store.
And at the top of his cane wasn't heard any more.
The children looked eagerly for him each day.
And wondered why he didn't come out to play.
Till some of them saw Doctor Brown ring his bell.
And they went where they heard that he might not get well.

But after awhile he got out with his cane
And called at the children around him again;
And I think as I see him go trudging in the center, once more, of his light-hearted throng.
That earth has no glory that's greater than this.
The little old man whom the children would miss.

BREWERIES MAY STOP

If Food Administration's Order is Not Rescinded or Modified.

In brewery circles the ordering of Food Administrator Hoover forbidding the buying of barley and other grains for malting for a period of six months, has created considerable concern inasmuch as the grains on hand are not sufficient to last more than a month. Supplies have been bought but not yet delivered, hence there is fear that the breweries must be closed down if the order is not rescinded or modified.

Rippling Rhymes

By Walt Mason.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN.

I tolled the bell for old John L. and wept while I was telling; ah, yes, my dears, the briny tears down my face were rolling. Big, brave old John, you are gone, to join the phantom brothers to meet dead pugs with spectral mugs; but were the greatest losers! Jack Dempsey waits at Jordan's gates with trucked Bob, to greet you; you climb the stairs with Mace and Sagay, and Heenan, too, will meet you. In No Man's Land the specters stand of mighty men and bravery, and of such lads who scraped for seeds; and were the greatest losers! A mule can kick, but not so quick as you could swing your maul; nor yet so hard; you smashed through guard and science seemed like folly. Ten years you reigned, and nearly brained all pugs who crossed your orbit; then, tower of strength, you fell, at length, down by the ropes. But, father, John, you still lived on, a mighty man and famous; we swore by you in seasons long, when pikers came to shame us. We used to yell for old John L. when fighters side-stepped fighting; when fakers fought, with language hot, or spent their days in writing. Good by, John L. I toll your knell, and bring a rose, red one; you've quit the strife; while you had life, you never were a dead one.

Strive To Have Healthy Skin

Next time you are in a gathering of women note the different conditions apparent in complexion. You will see some flled with blackheads, some dry and rough, some smooth and gray, some smeared with rouge, some streaked with heavy metallic powders and ones in a while you will see one that is a demonstration of intelligence from every point of view. The color is rosy, the skin is clear and smooth, the pores are small and open, the powder does not show on the firm vigorous skin. Every woman can have a good complexion if she will only use a little discretion. If you would acquire real beauty, the beauty of perfect health, you must replenish your worn-out nerves with lecithin. Nature's own nerve restorer, and put into your blood the invigorating iron which Nature intended it to have for health. In most of the modern foods these and other vitalizing elements have been largely eliminated. Yet to be healthy and beautiful the system must have them. They are found in Bio-feron, not only in proper proportions to restore weakened vitality but in such form as the system can best assimilate them. A treatment of lecithin and iron propionate as combined in Bio-feron increases the appetite, aids nutrition and invigorates the patient. And Bio-feron in its tablet form is easy and palatable to take—no liquid iron discoloration of the teeth, no unpleasant taste. There is no secret or mystery about Bio-feron. Doctors prescribe it regularly because they know exactly what it contains as well as what it will do and they know they could not formulate a better up-building tonic. The action of Bio-feron on the system is so beneficial, we are so sure of its giving you positive health and vigor, providing, of course, there is no serious chronic ailment such as cancer, tuberculosis, etc., that we only sell it on the condition that you agree to return the empty package and accept a refund of your money unless you are entirely satisfied. There is no use waiting for health and beauty. It is better to do things today than tomorrow. Go to your physician today—right now—get a prescription for Bio-feron. Then start taking it at once as he advises or see directions on the package and for the guarantee protects your money. ## WRITTEN RECORD OF ATROCITIES

Diaries of German Soldiers Tell
of Murder and Pillage in Belgian Cities.

CALLS "DISGRACE TO ARMY"

No Discrimination Made Between Recent and Guilty Infants Shot in Dead Mothers' Arms—Testimony of Brand Whitlock.

Very many German soldiers who have been taken prisoner had kept diaries, and these have been confided by the captors. Many have been published, frequently with facsimile reproductions to guarantee their authenticity. The following extracts, with the testimony of Brand Whitlock, are made public by the committee on public information
at Washington:

"Aug. 22. . . Our men came back and said that at the point where the valley joined the Meuse we could not get any farther, as the villagers were shooting at us from every house. We shot the whole lot—16 of them. They were drawn up in three ranks; the same shot did for three at a time.
The men had already shown their brutal instincts."

"The sight of the bodies of all the inhabitants who had been shot was indescribable. Every house in the whole village was destroyed. We dragged the villagers one after another out of the most unlikely corners.
The men were shot as well as the women and children who were in the houses since shots had been fired from the convent windows; and we burnt it afterwards."

"The inhabitants might have escaped the penalty by handing over the guilty and paying 15,000 francs."

"The inhabitants fired on our men again. The division took drastic steps to stop this, the villages being burnt and the inhabitants being shot.
The pretty little village of . . . Guerissus, however, was apparently set on fire without cause. A cyclist fell off his machine and his rifle went off.
He immediately said he had been shot
at. All the inhabitants were burnt in the houses. I hope there will be no more such horrors."

"Disgrace to Our Army."

"At Leppes apparently 200 men were shot. There must have been some innocent men among them. In future
we shall have to hold an inquiry as to their guilt instead of shooting
them."

"In the evening we marched to Mauverfontaine. Just as we were having our meal the alarm was sounded—everyone is very jumpy."

"September 2. Still at Reibel, on guard over prisoners. . . The houses are charming inside. The middle class in France has magnificent furniture.
We found stylish pieces everywhere
and beautiful silk, but in what a state.
Good God! . . . Every bit of furniture—broken, mirrors smashed.
The vandals themselves could not have done more damage. This place is a disgrace to our army. The inhabitants who fled could not have expected, of course, that all their goods
would have been left intact after so many troops had passed. But the commanders are responsible for the greater part of the damage, as they could have prevented the looting and destruction. The damage amounts to millions of marks; even the safes
have been attacked."

"In a soldier's house, in which, as luck would have it, all was in excellent taste, including a collection of old lace and Eastern works of art,
everything was smashed to bits.
I could not resist taking a little memento myself here and there. . .
One house was particularly elegant,
everything in the best taste. The hall was of light oak; I found a splendid rainsuit under the staircase, and a cane for . . . (From the diary
of an officer in the One Hundred Seventy-eighth regiment, Twelfth Saxon Corps.)"

"In a horror apparently was not shared by the German commander in chief, as is evident from the following order."

"The People of Liege."

"The population of Andenne, after making a display of peaceful intentions toward our troops, attacked them in the most treacherous manner. With my authorization, the general commanding these troops has reduced the town to ashes and has had 110 persons shot."

"I bring this fact to the knowledge of the people of Liege in order that they may know what fate to expect should they adopt a similar attitude."

"Liege, 22d August, 1914."

"GENERAL VON BUELOW"

Brand Whitlock Writes of Massacres.
In his report of September 12, 1917,
to the secretary of state, Minister Whitlock has much to tell of the policy of frightfulness. The following passages refer to the subject of massacres:

"Summary executions took place (at Dinant) without the least semblance of judgment. The names and number of the victims are not known, but they must be numerous. I have been unable to obtain precise details in this respect and the number of persons who have died is unknown. Among the persons who were shot were: Mr. De-Gail, mayor of Dinant; Sasseville, first adjutant; Nimmer, aged seventy; Consul for the Argentine Republic Victor Poncet, who was executed in the presence of his wife and seven children; Wasselge and his two sons; Messrs. Gustave and Leon Nisse, two very old men; Jules Monia and others all shot in the cellar of their brewery; Mr. Camille Pette and son, aged seventeen; Philippart, Pledfort,
his wife and daughter; Miss Marsart; During the execution of about forty inhabitants of Dinant the Germans placed, before the condemned their wives and children. It is thus that Madame Alibi who had just given birth to a child, three days previously,
was brought on a mattress by German soldiers to witness the execution of her husband; her cries and supplications were so pressing that her husband's life was spared."

"On the 26th of August German soldiers entered various streets (of Louvain) and ordered the inhabitants of the houses to proceed to the Place de la Station, where the bodies of nearly a dozen assassinated persons were lying. Women and children were separated from the men and forced to remain on the Place de la Station during the whole day. They had to witness the execution of many of their fellow citizens, who were for the most part shot at the side of the square, near the house of Mr. Hemalide. The women and children, after having remained on the square for more than 15 hours, were allowed to depart. The Gardes Civiques of Louvain were also taken prisoners and sent to Germany, to the camp of Munster, where they were held for several weeks."

"On Thursday, August 27, order was given to the inhabitants to leave Louvain because the city was to be bombarded. Old men, women, children, the sick, priests, nuns, were driven on the roads like cattle. More than 10, 000 of the inhabitants were driven as far as Trelmoet, nearly 12 miles from Louvain."

Infants Shot in Mothers' Arms.

"One of the most sorely tried communities was that of the little village of . . . down in what is known as the Boilage, the coal fields near Charleroi. Tannies is a mining village in the Sambre; it is a collection of small cottages sheltering about 5, 000 inhabitants, mostly all poor laborers."

"The little graveyard in which the church stands bears its mute testimony to the horror of the event. There are hundreds of new-made graves, each with its small wooden cross and its bit of flowers; the crosses are so close ly bunched that there is scarcely room to walk between them. The crosses are alike and all bear the same date,
the sinister date of August 22, 1914."

"But whether their hands were cut off or not, whether they were impaled
on bayonets or not, children were shot down by military order in cold blood.
In the awful crime of the Rock of Boy-ard, there overlooking the Meuse below Dinant, infants in their mothers'
arms were shot down without mercy.
The dead, never surpassed in cruelty
by any band of savages, is described by the bishop of Namur himself: . . .
"One scene surpasses in horror all others; it is the fusillade of the Rocher Bayard near Dinant. It appears to have been ordered by Colonel Meister. This fusillade made many victims among the nearby parishes, especially those of des Rivaiges and Nette. It caused the death of nearly 50 persons without distinction of age or sex. Among the victims were butlers in arms, boys and girls; fathers and mothers of families, even old men."

Dead Children in Pile of Bodies.

"It was there that 12 children under the age of six perished from the fire of the executioners, six of them as they lay in their mothers' arms: . . .
"The child Flevet, three weeks old;
"Maurice, Betems, eleven months old."

"Nelly Rollet, eleven months old."

"Gilda Genon, eighteen months old."

"Gilda Marchot, two years old."

"Charles Struvay, two years and six months."

"The pile of bodies comprised also many children from six to fourteen years. Eight large families have entirely disappeared. Four have but one survivor. Those men that escaped death and many of whom were riddled with bullets were obliged to bury in a summary and hasty fashion
their fathers, mothers, brothers or sisters; then after having been relieved of their money and being placed in chains they were sent to Cussel (Prussia)."

Mr. Hugh Gibson, the secretary of our legation in Belgium, visited Louvain during its systematic destruction

by the Germans. In "A Journal From Our Legation in Belgium," New York, 1917, pages 124-125, he relates what
the German officers told him:

"It was a story of clearing out civilians from a large part of the town, a systematic robbing out of men from cellars and garrets, wholesale shootings, the generous use of machine guns, and the free application of the torch—the whole story enough to make one see red. And for our guidance it was impressed on us that this would make people respect Germany
and think twice about resisting her."

German pastors and professors far from the excitement of the firing have defended this policy of frightfulness.

"We are not only compelled to accept the war that is forced upon us
but are even compelled to carry on this war with a cruelty, a ruthlesness, an employment of every imaginable device, unknown in any previous war."—Pastor D. Baugarten, in Deutsche Religion in Schwere Zeit,
"German Speeches in Difficult Days."

WELL TO KNOW WHAT TO SKIP

Advice to Readers Is Worth Pondering—Man Who Waited Many Years to Finish Book.

"Reading should be a joy, not a penance," said Mr. Pett Ridge, at the Mansion house, after distributing prizes and certificates to pupils of the city of London college.

"Above all," he added, according to the Daily Chronicle, "learn to skip.
Skipping is an exercise which prevents obesity of the mind."

Mr. Pett Ridge told some amusing stories.

"In a military hospital," he said, "a man asked me whether I could get him Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea." He said, "I began it 20 years ago. I borrowed it from another man.
Somebody plucked it from me when I was half way through it, and I've never had a chance of getting to the end of it. I found the book for him.
He said, 'I'm very glad to have it. I began it 20 years ago.' I said, 'Yes, but you've read a large number of books since then, haven't you?' The man replied, 'Oh, no; I never tried another.'"

Another story was of the agent of a pill and ointment firm who was sent into a foreign country. As a first step toward business he compiled a long list of complaints, beginning with
"Asthma" and ending with "Zymotic diseases." His goods, he said, would cure these ailments, and then, as a sort of postscript, he added: "If there should be any complaints existing in this country which are unknown in England, the pills and ointment will cure them also."

ENLISTED MEN MUST HELP

Portion of Government Allowance Required to Be Allotted for Benefit of Their Dependents.

Every enlisted man in the military or naval forces of the United States must allot for the benefit of a wife or child an amount equal to the government's family allowance, with a maximum, however, of half his pay and a minimum of $15 per month, according to the American Review of Reviews.

If he has no wife or child and makes no voluntary allotments for other dependents, or for other purposes, the secretary of war or navy may require him to deposit with the government at 4 per cent compound interest half his pay, or so much of half his pay as he does not allot either for his dependents
or for other purposes.

This puts the man with dependents
more nearly on a democratic footing
of equality with one who has none and the better-paid American soldier with the poorer-paid European with whom he is fighting.

The family allowances are based on a graduated scale depending on the number of dependents, and are conditioned on allotments of equal amounts up to half pay. In no case, however, does the allowance exceed $50 for one family. An ordinary enlisted man receiving $33 per month in foreign service, if his family is large enough, may be required to allot $15.50 per month and secure thereby for his family a total income of $48.50 per month.

Internment in Switzerland.

In Switzerland work has been declared obligatory for every interned man whose health permits it. The interned are divided into six classes, according to their physical capacity for work, the classification
being entrusted to practicing physicians who must act with prudence. The prisoner works for his own welfare and re-education, not for the benefit of the Swiss, but care
is taken to avoid unfair competition with Swiss industry. He receives a wage commensurate with his labor,
some governments requiring a portion of the wage to be turned over to them to be used toward the cost of maintaining their prisoners.

PEGGY AND PRINCE HANDSOME

ONCE upon a time there lived a little girl named Peggy. She was good and kind, but very, very poor, and had to gather sticks in the woods for the village folks to pay for her food and clothing.

One day when Peggy was out in the woods she heard a queer noise under the tall grasses at her feet. Startled, she looked down, and there sat a great, big,
ugly toad puffing out his cheeks and crying as if his heart would break.

"Poor little fellow!" exclaimed Peggy.
"What's the trouble?"

"I'm very miserable," sobbed Mr. Toad.
"I'm so dreadfully ugly every one is afraid of me."

"Just because you're ugly is no sin folks should be afraid of you," replied Peggy kindly.

"But no one wants me to live in their garden!" sobbed Mr. Toad.

Peggy felt very sorry for Mr. Toad, and begged him to come home with her
and to live in her garden.

This made Mr. Toad very happy and he hopped upon Peggy's bundle of sticks and Peggy took him home, gave him a good supper and put him to bed near the old well in the yard.

Fairies Danced About Him.

It was long after midnight when Peggy was awakened by the sweetest music
she had ever heard. Peggy jumped out of bed and ran to the window. Near the old well hundreds of tiny fairies were dancing around the ugly toad singing merrily.

A carriage made from a coconut shell,
drawn by eight snow-white mice pulled in through the gate and a beautiful fairy dressed in sparkling silver jumped out and touched Mr. Toad with her magic wand, and he turned into a handsome prince. Then it was that Peggy gave a cry of delight, and like a puff of smoke everything vanished.

The next morning Peggy was quite disappointed, for instead of finding the handsome prince there at the ugly toad blinking in the sunlight, Peggy decided she must have dreamed the whole affair, so she kept it to herself.

The next night the same thing happened, but still Peggy never told any one.

On the third night the coconut carriage came and carried Mr. Toad away, and when she looked for him the next morning, sure enough he was gone.

This made Peggy very sad, and for days and nights Peggy cried and cried.
She had grown very fond of her little prince, and she missed him very much.

"I've come to claim you, Peggy dear,
for my princess," whispered Prince Handsome, "because you were good and kind to me when I was an ugly toad,
and because I've long been searching for a girl who can keep a secret. Had you told what you thought were only dreams
the ugly toad had me in a toad's skin
would never have been broken."

Prince Handsome was so happy he had found Peggy, who never judged folk by their looks, that he married Peggy that very day, and they lived long and happy
as lords in his beautiful castle.

Long Live The King

MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

"Our very precautions are our danger," said the chancellor. "And the king—"

"He stopped and sat, tapping his fingers on the arm of his chair."

"Add the king, sir?"

"Almost at the end. A day or two."

Karl, with Hedwig in his thoughts, had returned to mobilize his army not far from the border for the spring maneuvers, and at a meeting of the king's council the matter of a mobilization in Livonia was seriously considered.

But Frise favored it, and made an impassioned speech, with sweat thick on his heavy face.

"I am not cowardly," he faltered. "I fear nothing for myself or for those belonging to me. But the duty of this council is to preserve the throne for the crown prince, at any cost. And, if we cannot trust the army, to what can we trust?"

"In God," said the chancellor grimly.

In the end nothing was done. Mobilization might precipitate the crisis and there was always the fear that the army, in parts, was itself disloyal.

The king, meanwhile, lay dying. Doctor Weidemann in constant attendance, other physicians coming and going. His apartments were silent. Hugs covered the corridors, that no footfall disturb his quiet hours. The nursing sisters attended him, one by his bedside, one always on her knees at the pillow in the small room beyond. He wanted little—now and then a sip of water, the cooled juice of fruit. Injections of stimulants, given by Doctor Weidemann himself, had scarred his old arms with purplish marks, and were absorbed more and more slowly as the hours went on.

He rarely slept, but lay inert and not unhappy. Anunciata came, and was all lover—and twenty-three.

"Sweetheart!" he said. "Sweetest heart!"

When, having kissed her, he drew back a trifle for the sheer joy of again catching her to him, it was Hedwig who held out her arms to him.

"I couldn't bear it," she said simply. "I love you. I had to see you again. Just once."

If he had not entirely lost his head before, he lost it then. He stopped thinking, was content for a time that her arms about his neck, and his arms about her, holding her close.

"Never let me go, Nikky," she whispered. "Hold me, always."

"Always!" said Nikky, valiantly and absurdly.

"Like this," said Nikky, who was, like most lovers, not particularly original. He tightened his strong arms about her.

Then, because she dared not give him time to think, she made her plea—rapid, girlish, rather incoherent, but understandable enough. They would go away together and be married. She had it all planned and some of it arranged. And then they would hide somewhere, and—always be together," she finished, tremulous with anxiety.

And Nikky? His pulses still beating at her nearness, his eyes on her upturned, despairing young face, turned to him for hope and comfort, what could he do? He took her in his arms again and soothed her, while she cried her heart out against his tunic. He said he would do anything to keep her from unhappiness, and that he would die before he let her go to Karl's arms. But if he had stopped thinking before, he was thinking hard enough then.

"To-night?" said Hedwig, raising a tear-stained face. "It is early. If we wait something will happen. I know it. They are so powerful, they can do anything."

He put her away from him at last, after he had kissed her eyelids and her forehead, which was by way of reconciliation. And then he folded his arms, which were treacherous and might betray him. After that, not daring to look at her, but with his eyes fixed on the irregular skyline of the city roofs, he told her many things, of his promise to the king, of the danger, imminent now and very real, of his word of honor not to make love to her, which he had broken.

Hedwig listened, growing cold and still, and drawing away a little. She listened, even as she pleaded against his own heart, treacherous arms still folded. And if she saw his arms and not his eyes, it was because she did not look up.

Halfway through his eager speech, however, she drew her light wrap about her and turned away. Nikky could not believe that she was going like that, without a word. But when she had disappeared through the window, he knew, and followed her. He caught her in Hedwig's room, and drew her savagely into his arms.

But it was a passive, quiescent, and trembling Hedwig who submitted, and then, freeing herself, went out through the door into the lights of the corridor. Nikky flung himself, face down, on a shrouded couch and lay there, his face buried in his arms.

Olga Loschek's last hope was gone.

On the day of the carnival, which was the last day before the beginning of Lent, Prince Ferdinand William Otto awakened early. The palace still slept, and only the street sweepers were about the streets. Prince Ferdinand William Otto sat up in bed and yawned. This was a special day, he knew, but at first he was too drowsy to remember.

Then he knew—the carnival! A delightful day, with the place full of people in strange costumes—peasants, lumps, jesters, who cut capers on the green in the park, little girls in procession, wearing costumes of fairies with gauze wings, students who paraded and blew noisy horns, even horses decorated and now and then a dog dressed as a dancer or a soldier.

He yawned again, and began to feel hungry. He decided to get up and take his own bath. There was nothing like getting a good start for a gala day. And, since with the crown prince to decide was to do, which is not always a royal trait, he took his own bath, being very particular about his ears, and not at all particular about the rest of him. Then, on Oskar having yet appeared with fresh garments, he ducked back into bed again, quite bare as to his small body, and snuggled down in the sheets.

Lying there, he planned the day. There were to be no lessons except fencing, which could hardly be called a lesson at all, and as he now knew the "Gettysburg address," he meant to ask permission to recite it to his grandfather. To be quite sure of it, he repeated it to himself as he lay there:

"Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal."

Late in the morning Nikky took him to the roof. "We can't go out, old man," Nikky said to him, rather startled to discover the unhappiness in the boy's face, "but I've found a place where we can see more than we can here. Suppose we try it?"

"Why can't we go out? I've always gone before."

"Well," Nikky temporized, "they've made a rule. They make a good many rules, you know. But they said nothing about the roof."

"The roof?"

"The roof. The thing that covers us and keeps out the weather. The roof, highness." Nikky alternated between formality and the other extreme with the boy.

"It slants, doesn't it?" observed his highness doubtfully.

"Part of it is quite flat. We can take a ball up there, and get some exercise while we're about it."

As a matter of fact, Nikky was not altogether unselfish. He would visit the roof again, where for terrible, wonderful moments he had held Hedwig in his arms. On a pilgrimage, indeed, like that of the crown prince to Etzel, Nikky would visit his shrine.

So they went to the roof. One could see the streets crowded with people, could hear the soft blare of distant horns.

"The scenic railway is in that direction," observed the crown prince, leaning on the balustrade. "If there were no buildings we could see it."

"Right here," Nikky was saying to himself. "At this very spot. She held out her arms, and—"

"It looks very interesting," said Prince Ferdinand William Otto. "Of course we can't see the costumes, but it is better than nothing."

"I kissed her," Nikky was thinking, his heart swelling under his very best

Olga Loschek had been incredulous, at first. It was not possible. Men in love did not do these things. It was not possible, that, after all, she had fallen. When she realized it, she would have broken out in bitter protest, but Hedwig's face warned her. "He is right, of course," Hedwig had said. "You and I were wrong, countess. There is nothing to do—for say."

And the countess had taken her defeat quietly, with burning eyes and a throat dry with excitement.

The plot was arranged, to the smallest detail. The king, living now only as long as it was decreed he should live, would, in mid-afternoon, commence to sick. The entire court would be gathered in anterooms and saloons near his apartments. In his room, the crown prince would be kept, awaiting the summons to the throne room—where, on the king's death, the regency would be declared, and the court would swear fealty to the new king, Otto the Ninth. By arrangement with the captain of the palace guard, who was one of the committee of ten, the sentries before the crown prince's door were to be of the revolutionary party. Mettlich would undoubtedly be with the king. Remained then to be reckoned with only the prince's personal servants, Miss Braithwaite, and Nikky Larisch.

Two obstacles were left for the countess to cope with, and this was her part of the work. She had already a plan for Miss Braithwaite. But Nikky Larisch?

Over that problem, during the long night hours, Olga Loschek worked. It would be possible to overcome Nikky, of course. There would be four men, with the sentries, against him. But that would mean struggle and an alarm. It was the plan to achieve the abduction quietly, as quietly that for perhaps an hour—they hoped for no hour—there would be no alarm. Some one they must have, enough to make the long journey through the underground passage. Otherwise the opening at the gate would be closed, and the party caught like rats in a hole.

During the early afternoon the chancellor visited the crown prince. Waiting and watching had made inroads on him, but he assumed a sort of heavy jocularity for the boy's benefit.

"We must get the lad out somewhere for some air," he observed. "It is not good to keep him shut up like this." He turned to the crown prince. "In a day or so," he said, "we shall all go to the summer palace. You would like that, eh?"

"Will my grandfather be able to go?"

The chancellor sighed. "Yes," he said. "He will go to the country also. He has loved it very dearly."

He left, shortly after three o'clock. And, because he was restless and uneasy, he made a round of the palace, and of the guards. Before he returned to his visit outside the king's bedroom, he stood for a moment by a window and looked out. Evidently rumors of the king's condition had crept out, in spite of their caution. The place, kept free of murmurs by the police, was filling slowly with people; people who took up positions on benches, under the trees, and even sitting on the curb of the street. An orderly and silent crowd it seemed, of the better class. Here and there he saw the police agents in plain clothes. Impassive but watchful, on the lookout for the first cry of treason.

An hour or two, or three—three at the most—and the fate of the palace would lie in the hands of that crowd. He could but lend the boy to the balcony, and await the result.

CHAPTER XVII.

The Pirate's Den.

Miss Braithwaite was asleep on the couch in her sitting room, deeply asleep, so that when Prince Ferdinand William Otto changed the cold cloth on her head, she did not even move. The Countess Loschek had brought her some medicine.

"It cured her very quickly," said the crown prince, shuffling the cards with clumsy fingers. He and Nikky were playing a game in which matches represented money. The crown prince had won nearly all of them and was quite plump with excitement. "It's my best, isn't it? When she goes to sleep like that, she nearly always wakes up much better. She's very sound asleep."

Nikky played absently, and lost the game. The crown prince triumphantly scooped up the rest of the matches. Then he lounged to the window, his hands in his pockets. There was something on his mind which the chancellor's reference to Hedwig's picture had recalled. Something he wished to say to Nikky, without looking at him.

So he cleared his throat, and looked out the window, and said, very casually:

"Hilda says that Hedwig is going to get married."

"So I hear, highness."

"She doesn't seem to be very happy about it. She's crying, most of the time."

It was Nikky's turn to clear his throat. "Marriage is a serious matter," he said. "It is not to be gone into lightly."

"Once, when I asked you about marriage, you said marriage was when two people loved each other, and wanted to be together the rest of their lives."

"Well," hedged Nikky, "that is the idea, rather."

"I should think," said Prince Ferdinand William Otto, slightly red, "that you would marry her yourself."

Nikky being beyond speech for an instant and looking, had his royal highness but seen him, very tragic and somewhat rigid, the crown prince went on:

"She's a very nice girl," he said; "I think she would make a good wife."

There was something of reproach in his tone. He had confidently planned that Nikky would marry Hedwig, and that they could all live on forever in the palace. But, the way things were going, Nikky might marry anybody, and go away to live, and he would lose him.

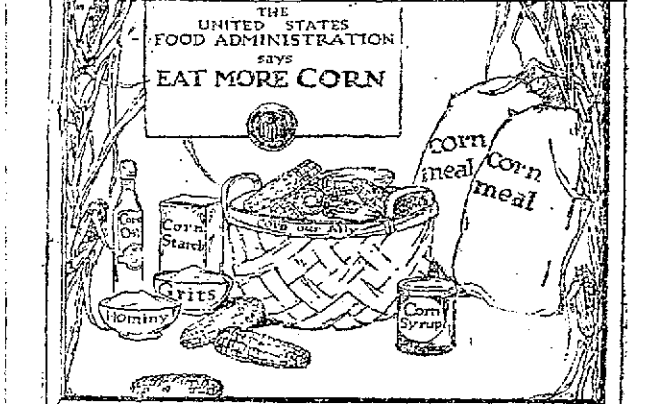

"Yes," said Nikky, in a strange voice, "she—I am sure she would make a good wife."

At which Prince Ferdinand William Otto turned and looked at him. "I wish you would marry her yourself," he said with his nearest approach to

GENERAL PERSHING MEETS KING ALBERT

General Pershing, Commander in Chief of the American forces in France, being greeted on his arrival on the Belgian front by King Albert of Belgium. This is the first photograph to arrive in this country showing the meeting. General Pershing paid a visit to the Belgian front and inspected the forces which are holding that part of the line in Flanders.

"In What Can We Trust?"

At last stricken by conscience to a prayer at his bedside. On one of her last visits that was. She got up to find his eyes fixed on her.

"Father, can you hear me?"

"Yes."

"I—I have been a bad daughter to you. I am sorry. It is late now to tell you, but I am sorry. Can I do anything?"

"Otto," he said, with difficulty. "You want to see him?"

"No."

She knew what he meant by that. He would have the boy remember him as he had seen him last.

"You are anxious about him?"

"Very—anxious."

"Listen, father," she said, stooping over him. "I have been hard and cold. Perhaps you will grant that I have had two reasons for it. But I am going to do better. I will take care of him and I will do all I can to make him happy. I promise."

Perhaps it was relief. Perhaps even then the thought of Anunciata's tardy and certain-to-be bungling efforts to make Ferdinand William Otto happy amused him. He smiled faintly.

Nikky received a note from Hedwig late that afternoon. It was very brief:

Tonight at nine o'clock I shall go to the roof beyond Hedwig's old room, for air. HEDWIG.

Nikky, who in all his incipient young life had never thought of the roof of the palace, save as a necessary shelter from the weather, a thing of tiles and gutters, vastly large, looked rather astounded.

"The roof?" he said, surveying the note. And fell to thinking, such a mixture of rapture and despair as only twenty-three, and hopeless, can know.

Somewhat or other he got through the intervening hours, and before nine he was on his way. He had the run of the palace, of course. No one noticed him as he made his way toward the empty suite which so recently had housed his royal visitor.

Hedwig, in a soft white wrap over her dinner dress, was at the balustrade. A very dignified fairy, although her heart thumped disgracefully.

Whatever Nikky had intended—of obeying his promise to the letter, of putting his country before love, and love out of his life—called him instantly. The Nikky, ardent-eyed and tender, armed, who crossed the roof and took her almost fiercely in his arms, was

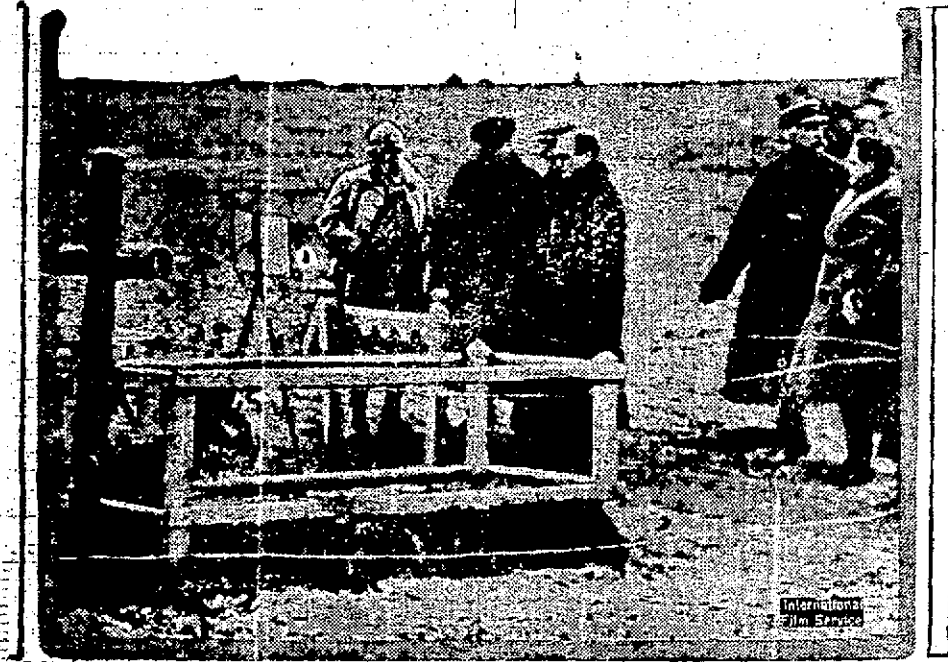

"Never Let Me Go, Nikky," She Whispered.

"The Scenic Railway is in That Direction."

BURIAL PLACE OF THE FIRST THREE AMERICAN SOLDIERS WHO WERE KILLED FIGHTING IN FRANCE

In a little cemetery just outside the ruined village of Bethelmont in Lorraine rest the three first American soldiers to lose their lives facing the enemy. The boys, Corporal Gresham and Privates Enright and Hay, were killed during an engagement November 3, 1917. A monument will mark the spot where they were buried. This photograph shows a party of American newspaper correspondents at one of the graves.

AFTER THIRTY YEARS OF MISERY MRS. SITES REJOICES

Chambersburg Lady at Last Finds Relief From Stomach Ills.

For thirty long years I have been tortured with stomach trouble that at times almost drove me frantic," said Mrs. Barbara A. Sites, 121 London street, Chambersburg, Pa., in telling of her remarkable recovery through taking Tanlac.

"Every meal I tried to eat upset my stomach, causing gas to accumulate, a bloated feeling and pains in that organ. Until I was able to belch off all the gas from my stomach I would be in misery. This condition finally caused my nerves to become unstrung and interfered with my sleeping properly. It was not uncommon for me to wake up in the night and lay awake for hours at a time. In the morning I would get up feeling tired and worn out. I could hardly drag myself about my household. Rheumatism set in recently and pains in my back, arms and limbs added to my discomfort. I heard so many good reports about Tanlac that I decided to give it a good, fair trial. From the very start Tanlac increased my appetite. My food supplies my system with the proper strength and nourishment. My nerves are getting back to their normal condition and I sleep much better at nights. That tired feeling is a thing of the past. I am so thankful that I found Tanlac."

Tanlac is now being sold here by the Connelville Drug Company. Tanlac can also be secured in Dunbar at D. C. Eason's Drug Store.—Adv.

Pechin.

PECHIN, Feb. 18.—While the miserable trolley service has been a great inconvenience to people of this section who wanted to shop in Connelville, they just can't stay away from that attractive town during these bargain days, and in some instances ladies have waited two hours for a car to make the trip.

Mrs. K. L. Brown was visiting her daughter, Mrs. Henry Blacka of Connelville and incidentally doing some shopping. The patrons who visited Pechin school Friday in addition to the regular lessons witnessed a fine literary program which they greatly enjoyed. A goodly number of young ladies and young men in Pechin district are suffering from knitting fever, but the fact has shifted from sweaters and cozy kids to socks which promise to be more serviceable and more highly appreciated by the boys in camp. "Babe," Thursday, and will depend on the heater for milk and butter.

The congregation of Pechin chapel in connection with the Sunday school is preparing a specially fine Easter program for an entertainment to be given in the church at that season. It will be largely musical, and may embrace a cantata.

Shriver Bryner of Donora visited his mother, Mrs. Job Bryner of Ferguson road, who is seriously ill. Miss Lulu Markley of Bellefonte, one of the champion potato growers of Center county, who visited her aunt, Mrs. Delilah Markley of Ferguson road for the past two weeks, has returned home.

The electric light bulbs for Pechin school have at last arrived and have been put in place for use the next dark day. Mrs. Michael Goran of Lemont has moved into the property of George W. Franks near Kellers station. Mr. Franks who found it inconvenient to remain at home all the time, and that his property was molested by marauders during his absence, decided to lease his property.

HAVE SWAP SOCIAL

At Meeting of Dames of Malta at Scottdale.

SCOTSDALE, Feb. 18.—Pride of Arpad Sisterhood No. 27, Dames of Malta, held its regular meeting in Odd Fellows hall on Thursday evening. The meeting was very well attended, there being degrees work to be done.

After the business of the evening there was a "swap social." Lunch was served.

The pleasure of inspecting the new Spring styles is exceeded only by your pleasure in wearing them—first. And in like manner the pleasure we derive from showing them first is surpassed only by the satisfaction of knowing they are absolutely authentic. Ready now are correct modes for Spring 1918 in Suits, Coats, Dresses, Millinery, Waists, Sweaters, Skirts and Piece Goods. You must see them.

Springtime Suits and Coats

Worn on the streets of Connelville today by women who keep abreast with fashion's decrees and come to style headquarters for their needs.

Tailored and Dressy SUITS

Authentic Spring styles in serge, gabardine, tricotine, silverstone, burella, homespun, leather cloth and tweeds. Skirts narrower and plain. Coats in some instances quite military. Others show the flon or bustle effects. Collars and vestees a distinguishing Spring feature. Braid and button trimmings. Shown in rookie, Sammie, infantry blue, Jap blue, copen, sand, tan, khaki, taupe and grey. Prices at many stages from $25 to $69.50.

The Spring Note in Ladies' Coats

Some of the smartest are tailored and have side belts. Others are belted all around. In fact the various effects in belts are perhaps the predominating feature of the Spring coat styles. Charming models are here in serge, gabardine, Burella, velour, covert, silverstone, tricotine, poplin and poret twill.

These shown in a big range of popular Spring shades—black, navy, tan, cester, rookie, grey, Pekin blue, copen and Havana brown. The price range begins at $15 and goes by easy stages to $79.50.

An Extensive Showing of Smart Spring Styles in Suits and Coats Specially Designed for Stout Women

The Petticoats Favored for Spring

Permit of a large selection in color—in both plain and changeable effects.

Some are in all jersey; some in all taffeta; and some in jersey with taffeta flounces. All are of the quality that guarantees full value.

Prices are $5.00 to $8.95.

Gingham Dresses for Little Misses

A big new showing including pretty light shades that fairly radiate Springtime. Good dark shades, too, for use when extra service is required.

Simple little styles that emphasize youthfulness and promise easy laundering. All sizes 2 to 14 years.

Prices from 75c for the smaller sizes up to $5.95.

Spring Waists and Sweaters

Dozens of New Waists in Original Spring Styles at $1.00 to $19.75

At $1.00 and $2.00 are splendid new styles in the celebrated Wirthmor and Welworth Waists—the best cotton waists manufactured at the price.

In silk there is a variety of charming styles in maize, coral, white, flesh, sunset and taupe. Those in crepe de chine are $3.75 to $6.50. Those in georgette are $2.95 to $19.75.

A Liberal Showing of New Sweaters at $5.95 to $16.50

Misses and young women will like the new slip-over styles that are so in vogue for Spring. All women will like the belted and sash effects with sailor or roll collars—and the big variety of attractive colors in which they are shown. Certain attractive styles have angora collars and cuffs.

The price range is from $5.95 for one in Shetland wool up to $16.50 for styles in fibre silk.
